

My Values

What is important to you? Is it family? Money? Adventure? Your career choices should be compatible with your values if they are to be truly satisfying.

Enter a score to the left of each value. When you are done, notice the 1's and 4's. Keep these values in mind when choosing a career or searching for a job. Use the following value system.

(1) Very Important, (2) Important (3) Somewhat Important or (4) Not Important

Score	Value	Score	Value
	Adventure: Risk, excitement, new experiences		Money Having a strong likelihood of accumulating large amounts of money
	Independence Working alone, being responsible for my own schedule, self-direction		Family Working hours that are compatible with family. Usually no weekend work
	Location Live and work in a place which give me the opportunity to do the things I like best		Responsibility Dependable, reliable
	Stability Few unexpected changes, order and predictability		Creativity Using your imagination, finding new ways to do things
	Prestige Fame, Admiration and respect		Power Possess control, authority, influence over others
	Knowledge Engage in the pursuit of knowledge and understanding		Physical work Being active and using your body
	Security Be assured of keeping my job		Helping others Serving others, doing something that is helpful to others
	Personal Integrity Feeling that your work has moral purpose		Friendship Developing close relationships with people
	Artistic appreciation Enjoy the beauty of art, music, etc		Leadership Being in Charge
	Appearance Dressing in a way that makes you feel good		Variety Changing responsibilities, non-routine schedule
	Teamwork Cooperating with others to accomplish tasks		Mastery Excellence in what you do, taking pride in your achievements